INTERNATIONAL CRICKET MATCH IN CINCINNATI.

We are advised by Mr. W. H. COLLINGS, Corresponding Secretary of the Committee of Arrangements of the Union Cricket Club of this city, that he has received a telegraphic dispatch from Mr. JONATHAN HARTLEY, President, who went to Montreal to make the negotiation, that the arrangements for the "All England Eleven" to visit this city were almost completed, and that they will play in Cincinnati.

Another Frightful Casualty.

We learn that a locomotive of a freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad exploded on Monday afternoon, at a point about twenty-five miles east of Wheeling, Va., killing an engineer, conductor and fireman. Particulars not given.

The Celestials and the "Barbarians."

Our readers want to know some particulars of the difficulty between the Barbarians and the Celestials. We can only say that England, up to 1833, through her East India Company, had a monopoly of the trade with China, which was mostly confined to the single port of Canton. The American missionary, it seems, was always a highly favored personage among the Celestials, while John Bull, with his bluster and enforced opium-smuggling, has, from the very first, been shunned and dreaded by John Chinaman. As early as 1793, the persistency with which the poppy-poison was enforced upon the Chinese caused even the embassy of Lord AMHERST to be refused admittance to the imperial presence. Year after year the exasperated Celestials, in some form or other, have rebelled against the hated barbarians, or foreigners; the Americans, however, being more highly favored.

THE NANKIN TREATY.

On the 29th of August, 1842, a treaty of peace was signed between Nankin, on board of the Commodore, by Sir HENRY POTTER, on the part of Great Britain, and by Ke-Ying, ELDEROO and NIG-KIE on the part of the Emperor of China. The most important provisions of the treaty were, lasting peace and friendship between the empires; China to pay twenty-one millions of dollars during that and the three succeeding years; the ports of Canton, Amoy, Foo-Chow, Ning-po and Shanghai to be thrown open to foreign trade; consular officers to be appointed by foreign powers to reside at these places; regular and just tariff of import and export, and inland transit dues, to be established and published; the island of Hong Kong to be ceded in perpetuity to Her Britannic Majesty, her heirs and successors; and correspondence to be conducted on terms of perfect equality between the officers of both governments.

Hong Kong is a small island, about nine miles in length by eight in breadth, about five miles from the coast, opposite the mouth of Canton River.

CHINA TREATS WITH FRANCE AND AMERICA.

France and the United States of America soon sent Embassadors Extraordinary to the court of Peking, but neither of them went further than Canton. Ke-Ying having been re-appointed Commissioner for the purpose, a treaty was signed between China and the United States, embodying all the important stipulations of the treaties and commercial regulations agreed to with England, and providing further for the erection of hospitals, chapels and cemeteries at the five ports; for permission to ships of war to visit any part of the coasts of China, and for the extension of these privileges to all nations. The liberal spirit manifested—extending similar privileges to other nations—is not evidence of the exclusiveness imputed to the Americans by the London Times. The French Ambassador concluded a treaty at Whampoa on the basis of that of the United States.

After the Crimean war, England determined on more vigorous proceedings toward China. On the 8th of October, 1856, a Chinese junk, smuggling opium, under the British flag, was seized upon by the imperial authorities. Admiral Seymour thereupon proceeded to bombard Canton, and in three days destroyed the government buildings. France immediately took sides with her ally.

CHINA TREATS ENGLAND.

The real feeling of John Chinaman toward John Bull is expressed in one of the Chinese official notices: "Honor, happiness and rewards will be the lot of him who kills an Englishman." The hate entertained among the people is so great that when a fort was taken, the soldiers drowned themselves, rather than be taken.

On December 4, 1856, all the dwellings and store-houses of Europeans at Canton were burnt by a Chinese mob, and many Englishmen fell victims to the hatred of the populace. In July, 1857, Lord ELGIN having arrived, Canton was declared to be in a state of siege. On the 12th of September the Chinese Government declared war against England. On November 7, Mr. RENN, the American Minister, arrived at Hong Kong, and his reception, and that of the Russian Minister, and their mutual conferences, intimated a friendly relation to the Chinese authorities, while an aggressive one was sustained by England and France. On the 15th of December the allies sent to the Governor-General their ultimatum.

CANTON TAKEN—GOVERNOR YEH SENT TO CALCUTTA.

The city, on the 28th December, was bombarded. On January, 1858, the forts were destroyed, and the captive Governor YEH, was afterward sent to Calcutta. Harassed by the conquered populace about Canton, the allies, resolved to carry the war to the very gates of Peking.

The fleet sailed from Shanghai, and on the 20th of May the forts at the mouth of the Peih were stormed and taken. The victors pressed their advantage, and passed up the river to Tient-Sing, ninety miles distant from Peking.

THE PEACE OF TIENT-SING.

The Emperor yielded to this threatening movement, and a treaty was at once signed, opening four more ports to commerce. The performance of the treaty seems to have been only its mere announcement, and was broken as soon as the Atlantic Telegraph wire—the first message of which was the news of the peace. The dishonor to England is so strong that delays have continued to long that force had to be employed even to get entrance to the river in order to reach the capital, where, by treaty, a Minister is to reside.

THE LATE DISCOMFURE OF THE ALLIES.

The terribly bloody reception given we have noted. A protracted war is before England and France, but, in due time, the "Flowery Empire" will be open to the commerce of all nations.

IMPROBABLE REMOTE.

It is intimated that the allied forces had entered the wrong river, and that a friendly reception awaited the plenipotentiaries at another point. That would be a bloody mishap. We doubt not, however, that the worst done was designedly done; for the hate that the Celestials bear toward the English is esteemed patriotism.

The Great Eastern.

New York, September 27.
The Herold's reporter had an interview, yesterday, with Captain Comstock, lately of the Collins steamer Baltic, who came home as a passenger in the Vanderbilt.

Captain Comstock commanded the Russian frigate General Admiral on her voyage from New York to Constantinople. He has taken great interest in the steamship Great Eastern from the commencement, and has visited her every month while in course of construction, and on the invitation of Captain Harrison, her commander, and the Board of Directors, he accompanied her on her recent trip, and happened to be on deck at the time of the fatal steam-explosion, off Hay Tong, on the evening of the 9th inst. Captain Comstock is highly pleased with the steamer, and pronounces her a perfect success so far as navigation is concerned, and is even enthusiastic on the subject of her performance. Many have the impression that the late trip was a trial trip for speed, but this is an entire mistake. The trip was made simply for the purpose of removing the ship from the Thames to a spot where she could be coaled and put in proper trim for a trial trip.

The Great Eastern is to be prepared for her trial trip as soon as the repairs necessitated by the explosion can be completed. Her trial trip will be from Portland to Holyhead, and according to the present arrangements, she will sail from Holyhead for Portland, Maine, on the 24th of October.

It has been fully decided by the Board of Directors that from Portland, Maine, the Great Eastern shall come on an excursion trip to New York, by way of Sandy Hook. This is positively settled, and was determined upon shortly before the ship left the Thames. Captain Comstock and Harrison were questioned on the subject before the Board of Directors, and both concurred in the opinion that the ship was in the harbor over the bar at Sandy Hook, drawing 24½ feet of water, with perfect safety. The famous clipper-ship Great Republic crossed the bar safely, drawing some inches over twenty-five feet. It was then arranged that at Portland, Maine, the Great Eastern shall be lightened to the required draught, and then proceed on her excursion to this city, via Sandy Hook.

Captain Comstock is of the opinion that the Great Eastern can not cross the bar safely except at the spring tides, which occur once a fortnight, and that even then she cannot bring much, if any, cargo. It would hardly pay to run her regularly to this port. The Helgate channel, he thinks, is impracticable, not for want of water, but because the channel is too crooked for a vessel of her immense length. Captain Comstock thinks that as a passenger ship, the Great Eastern might be run between New York and some European port with profit, because she would not necessarily draw too much water to enter the harbor, if she carried little or no freight, or a depot might be formed for her at the side of Hellgate, where, at all times, but near New York, as many ships approach to the head of London.

A large number of the stockholders are directly interested in the Grand Trunk Railroad, and of course would prefer to have the ship run to Portland. Other directors are India merchants, and desire, if she shall prove commercially as well as practically successful, to make her one of the regular line of packets to India. "They talk of building five more steamers of similar monster proportions, for the India trade; but of course that will depend upon the success of the first great experiment."

"On the whole, it is probable that the ship will be run regularly to this port."

Additional from China.

New York, September 27.
A letter from China to the Evening Post asserts that the English fleet attempted to ascend the wrong mouth of the river, while the Chinese deputies were waiting for them at the right place.

The writer also says that the commercial men in Shanghai all deplore the hasty and ill-advised proceedings of the English.

The Herold's correspondent, on board the S. S. steamer Poughkeepsie, in a letter dated July 3, gives the following account of the relations existing between the Chinese and the present American Minister:

"Last Wednesday (June 30) the Torquay went in search of another entrance to the river Peiho, and returned during the day with the report that they had landed with an interpreter at a small town west of steam, and just had time to give the Minister's letter to a Chinese official, when a troop of mounted cavalry was discovered galloping toward them, some thousands strong. All hands very naturally took to 'Shank's mare' as fast as they could carry them, and returned and made a report of their failure, which created some uneasiness. It was given up for a time to receive Mr. Ward. Yesterday, however, at eight A. M., two large junks loaded with produce came within a short distance of us and anchored. A small boat, lowered from one of the junks and having on board a Chinese official bearing an answer to our Minister's letter, immediately came alongside. The answer was in the highest degree favorable. It stated the party who landed from the Torquay had been mistaken for the English, and the cavalry which chased them to their boat was part of a guard four thousand strong, which was to have escorted Mr. Ward to Peking, and had been waiting several days in expectation of his daily arrival. The produce, a present for our Minister, consisted of nineteen hogs, nineteen sheep, thirty-three sacks of flour, nineteen sacks of rice, besides ducks, chickens, geese, eggs and vegetables in great quantities."

"The answer to his letter stated that this commissioner would send a pilot to bring his ship up the river eight miles."

"A great deal of correspondence has since passed between the officials, the British minister of war in close proximity."

The International Cricket Match.

MONTREAL, September 26.
The International Cricket Match has been resumed to-day. The game was stopped at twilight, the sun shining in the faces of the batsmen, with four wickets to fall on the side of the Canadians. England's first innings were 117; Canada's second innings, 45. The Englishmen are to play in the morning to make 12 on their second innings.

The 25 are launched at by their friends, who bet two to one on the 25 of St. George's Club. The English 11 play splendidly, and it is a perfect picture to see them; it is believed, however, that they will find their equals in the 25 at Hoboken. There were 6,000 persons on the ground, and the military band played some fine selections during the day. There were many ladies, military officers and heads of departments present as witnesses to the match.

The play was resumed at one o'clock to-day. Smith was bowled by Parr for 17 runs; the remainder of the score stood: Smith 17; Parr 17; Ellis 17; Parr 2 runs; Prior and Coffin 1 run; Ellison not out; the score making the match of Canada twenty-two wickets—leaving the Eleven of England 59 runs to get to win. They were obtained with the loss of 2 wickets, the score standing: Lockyer 6; J. Smith 10; Hayward and Bonner 6; J. Smith 17; Coffin not out; 4; Diver, not out; 1; byes 2; runs 57; total 33.

Montreal, Noon.—The cricketers are just going on the ground to finish the play. An exciting match has been fixed for to-morrow between the six of all England and the six of the United Canada Clubs, by each party choosing five others from among the outside cricketers.

The Revolution in Venezuela.

BOSTON, September 27.
A file of the St. Thomas of the 16th of September, received at this port, contains an important document, showing the terrible condition of affairs in Venezuela, where a war of races, fanned by political and military aspirations, is rapidly depopulating that country. The document in question is an appeal for protection from the foreign Consuls at Ciudad Bolivar, to the Governors of the French, English and Danish West India Islands.

In the appeal the Consul states that the contest now going on is not one of ordinary revolution, having for its object a political end; but, on the contrary, the motto now is, violence, death and pillage. The acts of atrocity committed by these vandals are, they say, so numerous that it would be difficult to enumerate them. In the provinces of the interior, the negro communities with their inhabitants have disappeared. Nothing but foreign intervention will save the country from entire destruction.

Washington Correspondence.

New York, September 27.
The Times's Washington correspondent says: "The report that President MORA designed to return to Costa Rica and appealing to the people is without foundation. He remains in New York to await news from home. Instructions will be sent to Mr. Dimity on the 9th of October, directing him to recognize at once the new government and open negotiations for the settlement of American claims."

Intimations received in diplomatic circles here would justify the belief that England and France will again be allied in a terrible war, and that China will be made to suffer severely for her late attack upon the English troops. The rumor that Russia had a finger in it is fully credited.

It is believed that Major Cross's case will be disposed of this week.

The St. Louis Fair.

St. Louis, September 27.
The number of visitors at the fair to-day is estimated 30,000. In the ring there were thirty-six rounders and stallions. The famous horse "Silver Heel," owned by Gen. Singleton, of Quincy, Ill., took the first premium. A large number of Devon, Ayrshire, Hereford, and Albany cattle were also exhibited on the 9th inst. The fair is distributed among the various States represented.

The art department is full, and attracts much attention. It contains several gems and a number of fine spirited pictures by old masters. The weather to-day has been clear and delightful. Vast crowds of strangers continue to arrive from all parts of the country.

The regular playing of the steam and hand organs for the prizes will commence to-morrow afternoon—about sixteen companies will compete. The city is crowded with visitors, every train bringing in large additions.
